The sheet music consists of three staves of musical notation. The top staff is for the treble clef guitar, the middle staff is for the bass clef bass guitar, and the bottom staff is for the bass clef bass guitar. The tempo is indicated as $\downarrow = 104$. The notation includes various note heads, stems, and rests, with some notes having numerical values above them (e.g., 3, 9, 10, 12). Fingerings are also present on the guitar staves.

This notated music represents an interpretation of the original.
It is simply a guide to assist in determining the notes to play, and in no way replaces the original score
